COMMENTS ON THE TICKET.

(From the Ohio Democrat, 1-15.)

Press opinion on the nomination divides itself at once into two classes—The natural instincts of humanity would prompt us to draw the veil of charity over the anguish of the Democrats, and it must be confessed that their cause is a hard one. The amount of high moral indignation that has been wasted on Blaine and Conkling and Morton is fearful to contemplate; powder and shot enough to last a whole campaign, not to speak of less dignified ammunition in the way of stink-pots, fired at the enemy and wasted! It is difficult to think of it. For months the Democratic press has been engaged in showing up these men—Blaine as a common taker of bribes; Morton as a demagogue, an incendiary and a lowbred agitator; Conkling as the supporter of corruption, the tool of the Administration—and the Democratic editors might as well have saved their thunder.
No wonder that words are powerless to express the disgust of Democratic opposition with Hayes and Wheeler.

It is pleasant to turn from this display of political stupidity to note that the nominations have united the Republicans with a firmness and completeness far exceeding the most sanguine expectations. In distant California, the papers which had allied themselves to the fortunes of Blaine accept his defeat as he does himself, and promise to the nominees of the convention a support not less enthusiastic than is offered by the papers whose wishes have been fulfilled by the defeat of Blaine. The Chicago Tribune, which drowns Blaine as it had been the failed Jaborer, wishes to inform the nomination of Hayes; the New York Times, which called in the same boat with the Chicago Tribune before the nomination, sits in the same boat with it now; the Evening Post, whose editor recently called a meeting of distinguished reformers to prevent the national election from becoming a choice of evils, is as firm in support of the ticket as if it had suggested it; the Massachusetts delegation, who were supposed to be so high-toned that an ordinary man could not reach their level with a step ladder, out their vote for Hayes; Hayes is the man for whom sake Schurz crossed the ocean to win over the German vote.

This is as it should be, and it is an indication of a Republican reaction and reawakening that will bring within its influence every Republican voter in the country. The full strength of the Republican party will rally to the support of the nominations in November, and the making of the full strength of Republicanism is a complete and universal victory. We do not care to arrogate for Mr. Hayes any claims that he can not fully justify, and we will be content with the modest assertion that he will receive the support of the Independent voters, without caring to insist that he realizes all their aspirations. The truth is that for some time past the Independent voters have found themselves in an uncomfortable condition. With the Democracy they have no sympathy, and can have none; and since they realized that they have anxiously been waiting for a decent opportunity of reentering the Republican ranks. This opportunity has been given them by the nomination of Hayes, and with their support of him, and we trust forever, cho third party folly and the self-styled Liberalism of the past few years. If it is possible there is no room for gratitude, it is well that there is also no room for resentment; and the union of all Republicans established by the part of Friday will never show trace or vestige of the threatening disorders which it so happily ended.

NEW YORK, June 19.—The Sun's editorial, to day, says the candidates nominated at Cincinnati will receive every Republican vote next November, and a great many votes of the independent party.

WILLIAM A. WHEELER.

We copy the following flattering sketch of our candidate for Vice President from the Bloomington Postgraph of Saturday:

William A. Wheeler, Republican nominee for Vice President, is a resident of Malone, Franklin county, New York, and a member of Congress from the 17th Congressional district. Mr.
Wheeler is about fifty years of age, and was either born in Franklin county or went there at a very early age. His parents were poor and unable to give him those advantages which, if not obtained with money, can only be obtained by hard labor. The northern part of New York State, in which Malone is situated, was in Mr. Wheeler's boy-hood a new country, and nearly all the land was covered with heavy timber.
The country, besides being a forest, was rough, rocky and uneven, a great portion of the land was sandy and too poor for profitable cultivation. An immense amount of labor had to be laid out in clearing off the timber and fitting it for cultivation before the owner could reap any reward for his labor. As a consequence the people were poor, and but little money was in circulation amongst them, for they had little or nothing to sell. It took all the poor farmer could raise to support his family. In this poor, rough, forest region of country, and in the midst of these then poor people, young Wheeler's lot was cast, he was poor as the poorest, and without either money or influential friends.

The writer remembers having heard Mr. Wheeler tell that he used to husk corn when a boy for the farmers for a very small sum, and to work a country school and board round for twelve dollars a month, taking his pay in grain, or in whatever commodity he could get from the people.

Mr. Wheeler worked on a farm, went to school, and taught school just as the opportunity presented itself, until he acquired an excellent education. He is a thoroughly educated man, as one can readily perceive who hears him speak or make a speech. He is a fine orator. It has never been our lot to hear a man use the English language better than he. Mr. Wheeler, when a young man, was connected with the Ogdensburg & Lake Champlain railroad, and it is due to him more than to all other persons, that the road has become both popular and profitable, and that too, where the cost of building railroads is enormous, and where building is done without gifts of the people's money.

Mr. Wheeler was afterwards president of the Malone bank, and showed great skill in the management of its financial affairs. This bank was under the old banking system in vogue before the war, but through the great panic of 1857 every bill of the Malone bank was as good as the gold, owing to the able management of its affairs by its president, Mr. Wheeler.

We do not know the exact date of Mr. Wheeler's first election to Congress, but he has been a member of that body continuously since 1870, and before that time he and Calvin T. Hubbard, of St.
Lawrence county, were sent there alternately for several terms. For several years Mr. Wheeler has been chairman of one of the most important committees of the House, the Pacific Railroad committee. There are no charges of any standing by the chairman of this committee, or of receiving any bribe for recommending legislation in favor of the road. The greatest howler for reform would not dare to say a word against the honor and integrity of Wm.
A. Wheeler.

Mr. Wheeler is an able lawyer, although he has not practiced his profession for several years. In 1866 the people of New York decided by vote to hold a constitutional convention, and it was in June, 1867 and concluded its work in February 1868. Mr. Wheeler was chosen chairman of the convention.
This was no small honor, as many of the greatest statesmen and ablest lawyers of New York were members of the body. If he went into the convention a popular man he came out of it still more popular, for while there he won the confidence and admiration of his opponents as well as of his colleagues by his fairness and skill as a presiding officer, as well as by his wisdom and knowledge of what was necessary for the fundamental law of a great state.

Mr. Wheeler is not a wealthy man, but is in comfortable circumstances, never having, as some public men have, made large sums of money in a short time. He has, with commendable frugality, saved what he made, until now he is well situated that want cannot tempt him to swerve from the path of duty. He is strictly temperate, a man of good habits, and attends the Presbyterian church.

He is a Republican, yet not a bitter partisan, and would not sacrifice principle for party. In his own district Mr.
Wheeler is so popular that no man could be found who would offer himself as a candidate before the Republican party in opposition to him, and no man in the whole State stands higher for honesty and ability.

Socially, Mr. Wheeler is all that any one could ask, treating with the same respect and courtesy every acquaintance whether he be rich or poor, well dressed or in rags.

He is eminently a man of the people.
He has risen from the humble walks of life, he has done all himself. He knows what it is to face the storms of adversity and fight single handed until the victory is won, but does not as too many do, forget what he once was, and look down with contempt upon those who are struggling as he once did to rise in the world among men. No better man could possibly be the choice of the Cincinnati convention. Mr. Wheeler possesses all the qualifications necessary to insure success to the Republican party.

A BOLD AND SUCCESSFUL BANK ROBBERY.

People's Transcript, 17th.

Yesterday noon one of the boldest robberies ever occurring in this city was perpetrated, the German banking company on Bridge street being the victim. About noon a fine-appearing, well dressed man went to Warner's livery stable and hired a close carriage to take his wife from the chamber of commerce, where she then was, to Jefferson Park. The carriage was furnished with a son of John Warner as the driver. Going to the chamber of commerce, the man went inside to get his wife. After being gone a short time, he returned and said his wife was not quite ready, but he would go to the bank. To the bank he was driven.
The only officers in the bank at the time were William Oberhauser, the cashier, and Bernhard Schneider, the book keeper, the rest being at dinner. When the man in the buggy drove up, the cashier was busy with a man regarding certain drafts which he wished to purchase. The man in the carriage sent in for Mr. Schneider, and on that gentleman going out, said he wished to purchase a ticket to Europe. Mr.
Schneider said it was not his business to attend to that branch of the bank's business, but the man kept him outside, talking, and several times tried to get him into the carriage, but was unsuccessful. While this was transpiring, a third man entered the bank by a side door, passed into the private office, grabbed $7,500 in currency which was lying on the table, and eloped through the back door unobserved. As soon as this was accomplished, the negotiations between the man at the counter and the cashier were brought to a speedy conclusion, and he departed. The man in the buggy also ordered his driver to drive to the chamber of commerce, which was done, he getting out and entering the building, leaving by a back door.

The loss of the money was discovered about ten minutes after the robbery, but despite the hardest work by the authorities, no clue to the thieves has been obtained.

The method by which the robbery was accomplished is a very old one, and has been shown up in the newspapers a hundred times, but its success is due to its simplicity. With a finely-dressed man looking man at the counter, who he could see the money, and see any one who should try to steal it, the cashier would naturally not be so vigilant as to watch what was going on behind him.

All the details of the plan had been carefully worked up, the thieves even knowing that the back door could be opened on the inside, but not, on the outside, without a key, and governed themselves accordingly. The fact of the man who was in the carriage trying to get Mr. Schneider into it, leads us to believe that the thieves were going to have the money if they had to fight for it, for, with Mr. Schneider in the carriage, the occupant, if any noise had been heard in the bank, could easily have held him, thereby precluding his giving any assistance to the cashier, who would have had the two men to deal with, and would have been quickly overpowered.

During an attack of "passionnaire" the devil of the Cattaraugus Union bolted over thus:

"The devil sat in the editor's chair, And thusly spake to the compositors:
Pick, boys, pick with care, Pick, ye lazy compositors, And pi, pi, pi, if ye dare, Pi in the press of the editor, If ye wish him to cuss and swear; Then pick, boys, pick with care."

SECRETARY BRISTOW, on Saturday last, tendered to the President his resignation as Secretary of the Treasury, to take effect on the 20th, and it was accepted. There is a rumor from Chicago that the position will be offered to Hon. C. B. Farwell. Secretary Bristow's resignation is said to be on account of the demands of his private business.

THE nomination of that tried and true western soldier and governor, Hayes, of Ohio, worries the Democracy already, but especially the adherents of the great advertising millionaire candidate, and bloated bondholder, Tilden.
It necessitates a western or a soldier nomination, and Hendrick's or Hancock's chances are improving, rather than their favorite's.—Jacksonville Journal.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The grand jury has indicted Richard Harrington and Arthur B. Williams for bribery, tendered President Grant his resignation, to take effect Tuesday next, 20th ing the various appropriation bills

COLUMBUS, O, June 17.—The committee appointed by the Cincinnati convention to notify Gov. Hayes of his nomination for President arrived here at 6 o'clock this evening, and were conducted to their hotel by the Columbus Cadets and Hayes club with a full band. At nine o'clock the delegation proceeded to the Executive Chamber, where they were received by Gov. Hayes.
Edward McPherson, of Pennsylvania, then stepped forward, and after shaking hands with Gov. Hayes, spoke as follows:

Gov. Hayes: We have been deputed by the party convention, held at Cincinnati on the 14th of the present month, to inform you officially that you have been unanimously nominated by that convention for the office of President of the United States. The manner in which the action was taken, and the response to it from every portion of the country, attest to the strength of the confidence in you, and the belief that your administration will be wise, courageous and just. We say, sir, your administration, for we believe that the people will confirm the action of the convention, and thus save the country from the peril of anarchy and the operation of the principles and policy of the democratic party. We have also been directed to call your attention to the summary of republicanism, the doctrine contained in the platform adopted by the convention. In discharging this arduous duty, we find cause for some congratulation in the harmonious action of the convention, and in the early response given by the people.
We see the promise of assured success, Ohio, we know, trusts and honors you.
Henceforth you belong to the whole country. Under circumstances so auspicious, we trust you will indicate your acceptance of the nomination.

THE GOVERNOR'S REPLY.

Gov. Hayes, with unusual agitation, and in a tone of voice so low as to make it almost impossible to hear him, replied as follows: Sir! I have only to say in response to your information that I accept the nomination. Perhaps, at the present time, it would be improper for me to say more than this, although even now I should be glad to give some expression to the profound sense of gratitude I feel for the confidence reposed in me by yourselves and those for whom you act. At a future time I shall take occasion to present my acceptance in writing, with my views upon the platform.

The delegates were then personally introduced to their nominee, and spent considerable time with him, informally conversing on various subjects.

A large crowd surrounded the visiting delegates at their hotels to-night.
Short speeches were made by Messrs.
Slouaker of Louisiana, Rainey of South Carolina, Hale of Maine, Howard of Michigan, Shepherd of New York, and others.

NEW YORK, June 18.—A special to the Times from Garrison's, New York, says last evening, Wm. A. Wheeler was sorely tried by the Republicans of this place, and Cold Springs, and spoke as follows: I thank you, gentlemen, for your congratulations for an honor which, probably, is as unexpected to you as it is to myself, and which has certainly not been sought for by me. I was not oblivious of the fact that my name had been mentioned by warm friends, who desired my success, but I neither looked nor hoped for such an overwhelming evidence of confidence as the convention favored me with, but I have been a soldier in the Republican ranks too long and have enjoyed its confidence too much, not to be aware of the high responsibility which accompanies that confidence. To be nominated in times like these, by the great party, which despite its occasional shortcomings, represents in its fullest extent the intelligence, patriotism and conscience of the country, is indeed an honor. The so-called "tidal wave" of 1874, which swept the Democratic party into power in the lower house of congress, has resulted in demonstrating to the American people the utter unfitness of that party for every one of the duties required of it. For the past seven months the Democratic majority in the house of representatives, has been on trial before the nation, and the nation is ready to render a verdict. The democratic party has been false to its promises, false to its duties, and false to the opportunities for reform which were presented to it. We are, to-day, entitled for the privilege of celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of our independence, and it is to the same noble party that we intend to consign the government in the future.
Let not doubt, gentlemen, in the coming canvass we shall achieve a splendid triumph. With that honored soldier and patriotic citizen, Governor Hayes, at our head, and the entire Republican party, of all shades and opinions, supporting him, we have but to do our duty as honest voters and good citizens, and victory is ours. Again, gentlemen, I thank you for this manifestation of your approval of the convention's work.

COLUMBUS, June 17.—Gov. Hayes last night received the following telegram from President Grant:

"I congratulate you, and feel the greatest assurance that you will occupy my present position after the 4th of March next."
U. S. GRANT.

St. Louis, June 17.—Frederick O.
Prince, secretary of the Democratic national committee, arrived here to-day, and will act with the local committee in perfecting arrangements for the Democratic national convention. Augustus Schell, chairman of the committee, is expected here to-night, and other gentlemen of note will probably arrive next week. All the hotels are busily engaged completing arrangements for accommodating state delegates and other guests, and from present appearances there will be no lack of accommodations for all who may visit the city during the session of the convention.

Rheumatic Cure.

This statement is substantially a fact, and is of the Urinary and Circulatory Systems.

It is the result of the most extensive and

Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, and all the Circulatory Systems.

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

In its history, this invaluable Medicine occupies the most honorable position possible for any remedy to attain. A few years since it was known only by the friends and neighbors and patients of the proprietor, and always sought for by them whenever troubled with Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, and all the kindred affections of the Urinary and Circulatory Systems. It was the way came to the notice of physicians generally, and through their favorable expression, and the successful results of its use, it became known to all sections of the United States, and Canada, and in this way, on a basis of its merit alone—unaided by "trickery" or special efforts—it has risen to its present position. It is now known to all who may attend. Thankful for the liberal patronage bestowed on our medicine, and desiring to benefit the suffering, we have decided to offer the medicine at a low price, and to participate in this Grand Centennial Fair, so that all who may be afflicted with
kindred affections of the Urinary and Circulatory Systems, may be benefited by its use, and the best of order will be maintained.

Mr. Albert's Orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for the occasion.
